

The Project Management Mindset

Whether you are planning for an event or trying to complete a task in your personal life, you are engaging in project management, sometimes without even realizing it.

In the workplace project management involves planning and organizing your company to accomplish goals, tasks or prepare for events.

As a business owner, do you and your team have a project management mindset? Are you constantly balancing scope, risk, timelines, budgets, resources, and quality to get work done? Are you result-oriented and focused on the bigger picture, yet willing to manage the smaller steps?

At IN-18, our interns are learning about collaborative work, time-management, communication and critical thinking. You can meet our summer interns as they present their training on how to adopt a project management mindset.
